DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-19, drawn to a method of growing carbon nanotubes, classified in class 423, subclass 445R.
 - II. Claims 20-25, drawn to a carbon nanotube structure, classified in class 428, subclass 408.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions of group I and group II are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the product can be made using a materially different process. In the instant case the carbon nanotubes can be grown and deposited after their growth using a liquid medium with or without a catalyst.
3. During a telephone conversation with Mr. Omkar on 12/15/05 a provisional election was made without traverse to prosecute the invention of Group II, claims 20-25. Affirmation of this election must be made by applicant in replying to this Office action. Claims 1-19 are withdrawn from further consideration by the examiner, 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a non-elected invention.

4. Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 20-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lee et al (U.S. 6,350,488B1).

7. Lee teaches nanotubes (150) grown from a metal catalyst (130P) that is deposited on a silicon substrate (110) (see figure 8C, column 3 line 5567; column 4 line 1-10). Wherein the metal catalyst is formed by photolithographic techniques (imprinting) (column 3 line 20-25).

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

8. Claims 20-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Chen et al (U.S. 6,960,528B2).

9. Regarding claim 20, Chen teaches a silicon substrate (210) with an imprinted vestige (230) deposited on said silicon substrate and at least a carbon nanotube (231) grown on the imprinted vestige (figure 2 , 2 line 30-33, 34-57; column 3 line 5-10, 25-33). Regarding claims 21 and 24, Chen employs a mask system common to photolithography in order to create the nanotip arrays (column 2 line 25-30, 40-46). Regarding claim 22-23, the carbon nanotubes are grown on the tip of a tapered structure in a highly aligned growth pattern (figure 2, column 8 line 61-68). Regarding claim 25, the nanotubes are grown using a metal catalyst such as Fe (column 8 line 65-66).
